DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
- 2. Claims 1, 2, 8, 9, 11, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Mackintosh et al. (US Patent number 6,317,784).

Regarding claim 1, Mackintosh teaches that a data providing system (Fig. 1 and column 2, lines 42 – column 3, lines 16). Mackintosh teaches that a first device (data server (116) in Fig. 1) for communicating individually with a plurality of terminal devices (users (112) in Fig. 1) (Fig. 1 and column 5, lines 7 – 60, where teaches data server communicates with users). Mackintosh teaches that a second device (broadcast provider (108) in Fig. 1) for broadcasting data to all of the terminal devices (112 in Fig. 1) which are in communicable state with the first device (116 in Fig. 1) (Fig. 1, 10 and column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, where teaches the broadcast provider broadcasts radio program, video program, and broadcasting materials to users and communicating through program provider to data server). Mackintosh teaches that part of reproducible data (video data, image data, and textual data) to be provided is transmitted to the all of the terminal devices (users (112) in Fig. 1) which are in a communicable state from one of the first (116 in Fig. 1) and second device (108 in Fig. 1) (Fig. 1, 10 and column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, where teaches users communicates with server and the broadcast provider and server provide the video data, image data, and textual data to users), and the rest of the data to be provided is transmitted to the all of the terminal devices (112 in Fig. 1) in communicable state from the other (material server or any server (120) in Fig. 1) of the first device and the second device, thereby enabling the provided data reproduced in the all of the terminal devices in real time (Fig. 1, 5, 10, column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, and column 8, lines 33 – column 9, lines 69, where teaches the other server provides the associated supplemental materials and information to users in real time).

Regarding claim 2, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claim 1. Furthermore, Mackintosh further teaches that the first device (data server (116) in Fig. 1) transmits individual data prepared in accordance with a request from one of the terminal devices (112 in Fig. 1) to the one of the terminal devices via the network (Fig. 1, 5, 10, and column 13, lines 16 – column 14, lines 19, where teaches as a user requests the program/data information to server, the server provides the information by broadcasting). Mackintosh teaches that the second device broadcasts data indicating an operation state of the network, which changes occasionally in accordance with a load on the first device, to all of the terminal devices (Fig. 5, 6 and column 11, lines 32 – column 12, lines 18, where teaches the broadcast provider broadcasts the broadcast materials including randomized time intervals (latencies states) to level the server load).

Regarding claim 8, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claims 1 and 2. Furthermore, Mackintosh further teaches that transmitting the data distributed to the first device and the second device at the same time, thereby enabling each of said plurality of terminal devices to reproduce the data to be provided in real time (Fig. 1, 5, 10, column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, and column 7, lines 56 – column 8, lines 40, where teaches transmitting the broadcast program information to data server and broadcast provider for broadcasting to users in real time).

Regarding claim 9, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claims 2 and 8. Furthermore, Mackintosh further teaches that transmitting the data distributed to the second device prior to transmission of the data distributed to the first device (Fig. 1, 5, 10, column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, and column 8, lines 33 – column 9, lines 69, where teaches transmitting same time the broadcast program information to the broadcast provider for broadcasting to users in real time and user can transmits to the server), thereby enabling to present the load status of the first device or the network to a terminal device which is accessing to the first device (Fig. 5, 6 and column 11, lines 32 – column 12, lines 18, where teaches the broadcast provider broadcasts the broadcast materials including randomized time intervals (latencies states) to level the server load).

Regarding claim 11, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claims 2 and 9. Furthermore, Mackintosh further teaches that all of the terminal devices are rendered to construct an environment in which the all of the terminal devices enable to reproduce the data to be provided in real time in cooperation with the first device (Fig. 1, 5, 10, column 5, lines 7 – column 6, lines 19, and column 8, lines 33 – column 9, lines 69, where teaches transmitting same time the broadcast program information to the broadcast provider for broadcasting to users in real time and user can transmits to the server for cooperating with the broadcast provider).

Regarding claim 16, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claims 2 and 11.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 4. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mackintosh in view of Billyard et al. (GB 2,347, 332 A).

Regarding claim 10, Mackintosh teaches all the limitation, as discussed in claims 2 and 9. Furthermore, Mackintosh further discloses that forming a logical space (virtual space) common to a plurality of terminal devices connected a network (Fig. 1, 7 and column 12, lines 35 – column 13, lines 44, where teaches forming virtual space and transmitting the form to the users). However, Mackintosh does not specifically disclose the limitation "broadcasting, when a status of the logical space has changed in accordance with an accessing status from one of said plurality of terminal devices, a status of the changed logical space, to said plurality of terminal devices in real time". However, Billyard teaches the limitation "broadcasting, when a status of the logical space has changed in accordance with an accessing status from one of said plurality of terminal devices, a status of the changed logical space, to said plurality of terminal devices in real time" (pages 14, lines 10 – pages 17, lines 17 and Fig. 2, 4, 5, where teaches broadcasting the changed virtual image data for user's accessing to the terminals). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the Mackintosh system as taught by Billyard, provide the motivation to enhance the communication reliability between terminal and server in communication system.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3-7, 12-15, and 17-19 are allowed.

Claims 3-7, 12-15, and 17-19 are allowable over the prior art of record because a search does not detect the combined claimed elements as set forth in the claims 3-7, 12-15, and 17-19.

As recited in independent claims 3, 5, 6, 12, 14, 15, 17, 18, and 19, none of the prior art of record teaches or fairly suggests that a data providing system comprises each of said plurality of first devices has a logical space formed therein to be accessible by said plurality of terminal devices, these logical spaces being formed associated with each other, and the second device, when the status of the logical space changes in one of the first devices, varies the status of the logical space of other device on the basis of the variation status, and provides the statuses of all the logical spaces after the variation to said plurality of terminal devices in real time, and a load detector for detecting a load on the first device when individually transmitting the data to be provided to terminal devices via the network and a generator for generating operation status data indicating an operation status of the network, which changes occasionally in accordance with the detected load of the first device, and together with combination of other element as set forth in the claims 3-7, 12-15, and 17-19. Therefore, claims 3-7, 12-15, and 17-19 are allowable over the prior art of records.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Dom et al. (US patent number 6,166,735) discloses Video Story Board User Interface for Selective Downloading and Displaying of Desired Portions of Remote-Stored Video Data Objects.

Downs et al. (US Patent number 6,226,618) discloses Electronic Content Delivery System.
